1. Background

Gastronomixs is an initiative launched by the Dutch entrepreneurs Jeroen van Oijen and Inge Meijs. The goal of Gastronomixs is to give professional chefs all the knowledge and one single user-friendly tool to quickly respond to the creative challenges in their daily work. The founders especially want to facilitate this process, and have created a unique concept by ensuring that all content on Gastronomixs is created by professional chefs. This online platform was launched in the Netherlands, Belgium, and the Antilles in 2012. Since then, more than 20,000* chefs have registered as users! Since May 2018, Gastronomixs has focused on expanding to England and Ireland.

BUILDING BLOCKS FOR CHEFS

Gastronomixs provides recipes in the form of building blocks that chefs can use to easily create new dishes or make changes to existing dishes. On Gastronomixs, all classic preparations are conveniently arranged per ingredient, technique, basic recipe, or world flavour. With more than 3,500 recipes, this platform is one of the most extensive reference works in the world! The platform is constantly being developed, ease of use is continuously being improved, and new functionalities are added regularly. In terms of content, too, all trends are closely monitored to ensure that users are always up to date.

MISSION

The most important mission of Gastronomixs is the creation of the ultimate tool. Furthermore, the team behind the platform is convinced that chefs are leading the way in changing the balance on the plate between vegetable and animal ingredients, which will be an important consideration for the future. They want to show chefs from all over the world in an inspiring way that there is an enormous wealth of possibilities with everyday ingredients.

2. Biography of the founders

Gastronomixs was founded by two passionate entrepreneurs. Below is a brief overview of their biographies. If you would like to know more about Inge or Jeroen, you can contact us for more information.

Inge Meijs

Inge Meijs (1988) is the co-founder and head of digital marketing of Gastronomixs.com. Inge was trained as a food designer and then completed a study programme in online and digital marketing. She has the perfect match of competences that turn wild ideas into commercial successes. So it comes as no surprise that she has been an entrepreneur since she was only 21 years old! Inge is able to provide structure to creative processes and is honest and authentic. At Gastronomixs, Inge is responsible for digital marketing, communication, design, and international relations. In her private time, Inge enjoys the finer things in life such as travelling and eating out.

Jeroen van Oijen

Jeroen van Oijen (1970) is the co-founder and head of culinary development of Gastronomixs.com. Jeroen worked in gastronomy for fifteen years before embarking on a career as a marketing adviser in the food service/catering industry. He completed several study programmes to gain better insight into creative processes and also spent a great deal of his time travelling abroad. For many years, Jeroen dreamed of a place where all the knowledge a chef could possibly need was collected in a convenient way. After being self-employed for a few years during which he completed a wonderful product and concept development process, he decided to create that place himself. At Gastronomixs, Jeroen is responsible for creative and culinary development, quality, and sales. In his private life Jeroen loves being out and about with his two children.

3. The team

You can't develop the perfect product without a passionate and dedicated team. Therefore, we are incredibly proud of the people that we have gathered around us. Each and every one of them are culinary top-talents who are committed to the cause and our mission. Everyone in our team is enterprising and independent and there is a lot of room for ideas and personal development.

In addition to the permanent employees, there is a small army of external specialists who make an indispensable contribution. Of course, these are the hundreds of chefs from all over the world who share their knowledge in the form of their signature dishes and tried-and-tested partial recipes. We have also gathered the best professionals around us, from web designers to translators to accountants: everyone adds something within their discipline to Gastronomixs to enrich the culinary world.

4. Facts and numbers

In the past six years we worked together with many different chefs to build a massive platform and network. Here we'd like to share some interesting facts and numbers.

Components: 3.576+

A component is a basic preparation method revolving around one single ingredient. This includes things such as vitelotte paper, strawberry mousse, roast salmon belly, or tomato powder. A component is not a dish in itself, but part of a dish. Components are culinary building blocks that you can use to make endless variations and combinations.
